

Ramkrishna Wagh College of Arts and Commerce – Distinctiveness

Proactive Alumni : Participation in propagation of education

Our institute takes a conscious approach to ensuring that students feel comfortable and receive the necessary support to succeed in their education. We have received positive feedback from our alumni, both formally and informally, who have reflected on the impact of our approach in various processes. Through an analysis of the role played by alumni in comparison to other peer institutes, our IQAC has proudly named it as the "Distinctiveness" of our institute.

Alumni & Admission

Our alumni have not only achieved success in their own careers, but have also played an important role in propagating the mission of mass education within their local communities. By sharing their experiences, they have helped guide the next generation of students through the admission process, including registration on the University portal and program selection. Thanks to their efforts, over the past 5 years we have been able to channelize more than 450 admissions, with the majority coming from rural and suburban areas and aspiring to professional programs. This gives hope for early career settlement and a brighter future for all involved.

Alumni & Motivation talk

The institute provides platform for interaction between alumni and current students. The platform is volunteered by alumni and talks on various topics have been delivered. The topics include Career counselling, Sports Counselling program, Industrial Counselling, Personal and Motivational talk with the juniors.

Alumni & Extension activity

Extension activity always bound to be remote place having first contact for making basic arrangements. Alumni at their local place are the perfect choice. They have understanding about purpose, objectives of extension activity and take initiation at place of residence or contact. Extension activities conducted in the village nearby our college.
